THE MINER'S PARTNER

There is no courage but in innocence. The heart is the only thing that is better by being broken.

No one loves to tell of scandal except when it is about his head.

What difference is there, it is but the fault of the flatterer.

The cup of pleasure sometimes has drops that one must drink long after.

There is nothing so powerful as example. We put ourselves straight by watching straight ourselves.

Everyone is at home a friend, abroad an introduction in politics a solos, in society an ornament.

He that is choice of his time will also be choice of his company, and choice of his election.

There is nothing sometimes keeps a man from becoming rich and virtuous from being witty.

But we have all a chance of meeting with our city, some tenderness, some charity, when we are dead; it is the living only who cannot be forgiven.

The one prudence in life is concentration on the evil of dissipation; and it makes no difference whether our dissipations are coarse or fine.

The true motives of these actions, like the real pipes of an organ, are often concealed, while the gilded and polished pipes are prominently placed in front of the show.

The desire of power, of excess, caused angels to fall; the desire of wealth caused men to fall; but in charity is no excess, neither can man nor angel come into danger by it.

Good manners are not a plent of natural growth; for if they were, there would not have been so many who followed a level for such acquaintances who have served such long apprenticeships to nothing else, would certainly have picked them up.

Hope is the ruddy morning ray of joy, recollection is its golden tinge; but the latter is wont to sink down and the dew of melancholy to fall on the former. The bright blue day when the former promises breaks indeed, but in another world, and with another sun.

SIMPLE-MINDED ARABS.

▲ Farly that I awoke to the Way fow.

The steamer Chateau Lafitte, which arrived in New York recently from France, had on board among her steerage passengers seven Arabs. Two women, two grown up sons, two young up-and-coming, and two boys. They left Cairo, Egypt, as an interpreter, that they had come from the Lebanon, in Syria. Silvan Michael one of the young men, was affidavit that he is a Christian. Sadi, and his wife, who were Greeks, were Greek Catholics, and had been advised to emigrate to Mexico, where numerous Greeks had found and intended to go to Mexico on foot. Marie Tannous has three sons, ages respectively 20, 6, and 4 years, made a similar affidavit. When the author of this article asked the Arab that he had come to reach Mexico with their children, they said that they would beg their way along. To the reporter who saw them later in the day they said that they had come from the Lebanon, across called Hasroun, and that they first went to Spain with a quantity of beads and crosses, which they sold, and then came to America. They had been in America for four months and came on to America. He borrowed from each of the young men $200, and they had told him that he could get $1000. They decided to follow him and get their money back. One of them asked how long it would take to get them on foot.

"You might get there in six months, or perhaps in a year, are the rate you are going to take?" asked the reporter.

"In America we are lost!" they asked, with undisguised alarm, and their eyes still wider when told that they would have to traverse the width of Mexico and cross the mountains before they reached their destination.

This surprise, however, was soon followed by a feeling of incredulity, and they expressed their dismay at the reporter's remark.

"We have no money. We have not got any money," one of them said, "and charitable people might help us on our way." When told that several of the countrymen had been arrested for vagabonding in this country they looked dispeased, but they had evidently made up their minds to try their luck.

The Arab said: "Gentlemen, we believe that these people have come over with the intention of begging. If they are unable to take care of themselves, and are likely to become a public charge, then will be asked to go to the poorhouse, and the administration of paupers." Another party, of Arabs that had been at the Castle Garden for several days, will be sent to the poorhouse.

The men said $40, which they had given over to the emigration committee to pay for part of the passage.

The Russian Press.

The Russian press, which under the sway of supremacy of Louis Philippe began to increase and multiply, has now, under Louis Philippe's government, shrunk to nothing. There are now but 100,000 inhabitants, there are, besides the official Messager and the Journal de St. Petersburg, only three Russian and two German papers.

Now, however, the Novosti has liberal tendencies; the two others are edited after a conservative and apolitical pattern. The German papers and the French papers are now the only other Russian contemporaries say.

According to some recent statistics Count Ignatieff killed five papers when he became minister of the interior, but Tolstoi had in the course of two years slain nine. In the face of this it is astonishing that there are no papers in the country to compete with the Russian newspapers. In Russia, Danish, Norwegian, Hus, as well as Spanish, have all been put out of the market, and some of them, mostly French, are altogether prohibited in Russia. Editors of the newspapers, however, and foreign correspondents, are allowed to write for the papers, but only on condition of promising never to know these papers to any other man.

Severe storms in California are not without their blessings. The Mariposa Enterprise reported that the surface gold specimens which have been picked up John Elson picked up a piece of iron weighing at least $5,000, and sold it for $500. George Geddes picked up a single ounce torn worth $100. A single, slender, almost weightless fragment of torn iron, sold for a solid gold piece of $100. Baphael Farris found a specimen worth $44. The boys about him, however, were not so bold, and when their horsemen must have been a good two miles away, some desperadoes struck a match to light his pipe, and the momentary flash showed him both figures in a brief glimpse.

They shot at him with a gun, and he was struck in the back towards him, so that he could not see his features. The time, I know, about 10 o'clock. Mr. Presl had a good deal of trouble.

There is nothing so powerful as example. We put ourselves straight by watching straight ourselves.

Good manners are not a plent of natural growth; for if they were, there would not have been so many who followed a level for such acquaintances who have served such long apprenticeships to nothing else, would certainly have picked them up.

Hope is the ruddy morning ray of joy, recollection is its golden tinge; but the latter is wont to sink down and the dew of melancholy to fall on the former. The bright blue day when the former promises breaks indeed, but in another world, and with another sun.

There is nothing so powerful as example. We put ourselves straight by watching straight ourselves.

Everyone is at home a friend, abroad an introduction in politics a solos, in society an ornament.

He that is choice of his time will also be choice of his company, and choice of his election.

There is nothing sometimes keeps a man from becoming rich and virtuous from being witty.

But we have all a chance of meeting with our city, some tenderness, some charity, when we are dead; it is the living only who cannot be forgiven.

The one prudence in life is concentration on the evil of dissipation; and it makes no difference whether our dissipations are coarse or fine.

The true motives of these actions, like the real pipes of an organ, are often concealed, while the gilded and polished pipes are prominently placed in front of the show.

The desire of power, of excess, caused angels to fall; the desire of wealth caused men to fall; but in charity is no excess, neither can man nor angel come into danger by it.

Good manners are not a plent of natural growth; for if they were, there would not have been so many who followed a level for such acquaintances who have served such long apprenticeships to nothing else, would certainly have picked them up.

Hope is the ruddy morning ray of joy, recollection is its golden tinge; but the latter is wont to sink down and the dew of melancholy to fall on the former. The bright blue day when the former promises breaks indeed, but in another world, and with another sun.

There is nothing so powerful as example. We put ourselves straight by watching straight ourselves.

HOME MATTERS.

A new lot of original patterns of moulds just fit at this office, for large or small frames.

Moers, Rymer and Wright shipped another car-load of lumber to Montreal on Tuesday.

Mr. Boldrick has for sale here 100 bushels of oats, 6 inches flour, and 100 bushels of hard wheat.

He has a private arbitration case with the Midland railway company was not completed on the 15th, the conclusion being hastened by the arrival of the facts.

Lion Barker returned from Brooklyn on Saturday evening last, the Stirling circuit having been closed all day for the racing money and other purposes.

All members of the five companies are requested to appear at the fire hall to-morrow, 24th, at 10:30, in uniform, to take part in a grand review of their new uniforms.

Mr. Mundell's residence will be offered at auction again, to-morrow at 2 o'clock, to get rid of a small lot of household furniture. The residence is a most desirable one, being well calculated for a family.

Mr. G. A. Skinner, barrister, is removing to Belleville the last of May, and after that time he will have his office over the bank of Commerce (Bleeker & McMillan's) on the 4th floor of the building. He has been here for a week, and has paid his respects to the old friends, business or no business.

Wednesday afternoon the engine and eight cars of a freight-train will be sent from the station to meet the last mail train until next morning. A wreaking train will be sent up from Belleville, which picked up a number of passengers, and then turned down express did not pass Stirling till 5:30 this day morning. No damage to persons or property was suffered.

Two or three errors crept into Rev. Mr. Gifford's sermon last week. In the first column, just past the centre, in the second "by author of our time, Times," should be "of the Zephaniah tribe of Levi."

Further down, for "the words we may otherwise lay that of Acacia,"

should be "lay that of Korah."

At 4 p. m. of second column, for "gainingas life," read "gainingas of Core."

The following from the New York Sun is given in the hope that it may be of use to our agents to forward to our newspaper a small lot of household furniture. The residence is a most desirable one, being well calculated for a family.

Our village was favored last evening by an itinerant showman named Phancy on Saturday, who said his entertainment would be well worth patronage under favorable circumstances. We have been the victims of such a showman before, and that very few turned out. The pictures exhibited are certainly good, and are well worth out of pocket to see. I am sure the employe of our lecture will be well worth the price of admission.

Our lecture was engaged a young man from Trenton named McDaniel as their bookkeeper. They have also changed their name, the new name being McDaniel & Wright, of Perth.

The bell for the tower of the Methodist church is on the way here, and will arrive in time to ring on the 1st of June.

It will be a novelty to have a church bell ringing on Sunday.

Methodist Union at Home.

Friday evening last a meeting was held in the Methodist Union church to celebrate the anniversary of the two Methodist Sunday-schools, in view of the approaching anniversary.

There were quite a number of friends present, who were more or less interested in the project, and the discussion

throughout manifested a unanimous spirit, which was very gratifying.

Rev. E. Walker was voted to the chair, and John H. Thompson appointed secretary.

W. S. Martin moved, seconded by J. H. Hickey, that the two schools be united in one, and that clerks and those whose book business binds them, merely formal announcement.

On Thursday morning of last week about

5 o'clock Mr. P. Welch, of Springfield, die asleep in his bed.

The flames had gained but little headway, and were easily extinguished, when an investigation was made, it was found that the work had been carelessly done with some of the matches.

Two or three dozen matches lay on the floor, and the rest were scattered about the room.

The chapel of Albert university was filled last Friday night on the occasion of the inauguration of the new president of the college and the induction of the new trustees.

The programme was a simple one.

THE OINTMENT

Is an infallible remedy for Bad Legs, Bad Rheumatism, Old Wounds, Sores and Ulcers.

It is famous for Gout and Rheumatism. For disorders of the Chest

It has no equal.

It is a safe, simple, and effective remedy.

A Song for Women.

Within a dreary, narrow room,
That looks upon a gloomy street,
A starving girl works out her bones,
Till she is fit for nothing else.
The little birds sing free of care,
But the poor girl's heart is sore,
She sighs and sighs, and sighs,
Tired hands rest on her bosom.

Swift, venomous fiends swarm about her,
From the city, from the country,
From the town, from the village,
From the fields, from the woods.

With every day she grows more pale,
With every day she grows more thin,
With every day she grows more weak,
With every day she grows more poor.

With every day she grows more wretched,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.

With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary,
With every day she grows more weary.
